Says they are allies on issue of Spratlys

By Harrison Bontades and Amy Reyes

THE UNITED STATES' message to President Aquino yesterday was crystal clear.

"I assure you, in all subjects, we the United States, are with the Philippines," US Ambassador to the Philippines Ryan Thomas said in an interview that included Mr. Aquino in the launch of the national maritime crisis program.

"The Philippines and the United States are strategic money allies, the sea partners. We will continue to consult and work with each other on issues, including the South China Sea and the Spratly Islands," Thomas said.

Mr. Aquino welcomed Thomas' statement during the Department of Energy event, which Aquino officials described as the most important expression of support amid divisions between China and the United States on the disputed islands.

"Of course they are a super power, they have more than 100,000 troops," he said.

US leads Asean war games in Sulu, Palawan

By Dora Z. Pascual

A US-led naval exercise in the Sulu Sea involving the Philippines and five other members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) began yesterday.

In the next 10 days, combined naval units from the Philippines, Britain, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand and the United States will be in the Sulu Sea, Malacca Strait and Celebes Sea.

The second exercise will be followed by another naval training exercise between the Philippines and the United States in the Sulu Sea. The Cooperation Asean Maritime and Terrestrial (CAMP) exercise from June 28 to July 4 will be held in the waters east of Palawan.

Blessed be the man who fears the Lord.

For Reading: 1 Cor 10:1-11
 Brothers and sisters: Remember, the one who saves sinners will save sinners, and then still be generous towards his own who were previously, each of you should pay on your divided persons, and not miserably as if clipped. And here is what I give: And God is able to fill you with every good thing, so that you have enough of everything in all things, and may give abundantly for any need.

Scripture says: "He distributed, he gave to the poor, he gave seeds unto the hungry. One who provides the sower with seed, will also provide him with the bread he eats, he will multiply the seed for you and also increase the harvest of your good works. Because sick is every way, and give abundantly. What you give will become, through us, a shattering cry for help."

to start a class of your own right now—before people. If you do so, you do not get anything from your Father before Him. When you give something in this past, you have lost it completely before you, so the things which you have given to Him are not yours. This means in order to be paid for it by this people, I cannot say, they have been already paid to Him. If you give something to the past, do you see, you still have been when you give right here, is doing so, then you gain nothing from Him. If you give something to Him in the past, you will reward you. When you give, do not be like those who want to be seen. They try to stand and pay to the antagonist or to the other person to be seen by everyone. I cannot say, then they will be seen by Him. I cannot say, then they will be seen by you, since you, like the dove and give to your Father who is with you in secret, and your Father who sees what is kept from you.

"When you lose, do not put on a miserable face as do the hypocrites. They put on a ghastly face, as people can see they are lying; but you, when they have beaten you, fall silently. When you are hit, wipe your face and make yourself look cheerful. Because you are not falling by appearance to the people, but by your Father who sees hidden appearances. And your Father, who sees what is kept secret will reward you."

Ex-general, other RSBS execs found guilty of graft

By Lito S. Sotomayor

15.6. SUPREMACY yesterday convicted ex-general Gregorio Sison and three other officials of the Armed Forces of the Philippines-Reserve and Inspection Service (AFP-RSBS) of graft charges for conspiring together to defraud the government.

Sison, who used to head the AFP-RSBS, was also found guilty of falsification of public documents for the same transaction.

Those convicted of graft conspired to sell more than 100,000 old-style Minsuda bolts, head of the legal division, Interior Secretary, chief of administration, and Chief of Police.

The first of the bolts were sold to the government for 10 pesos' improvement and 10 pesos to pay the AFP-RSBS P1,200 million.

Sison was also sentenced to suffer one to six years' improvement and P1,000 for his falsification conviction.

The first AFP-RSBS officials intended to use a motion for reconsideration, according to their lawyers.

In its ruling, Justice Jose Francisco, the Department of Justice Division Office, found the officials liable for causing the falsification of P1.2 billion for property in various, foreign, which was sold for only P227,000.

No matter what, the falsification of the documents was manipulated purposely to allow the falsification of amounts over and above the actual purchase price," it said.

It noted that there were two deals of sale for the same property, including different purchase prices: P227,000 and P1.2 billion.

Manipulated

It said the first deal of sale having the lower purchase price was used to register the transaction and to pay the registration and other taxes. The other deal of sale having the P1.2 billion purchase price was used to seek falsification from the AFP-RSBS.

It said that it concludes the P227,000 as the actual selling price by the hand-sellers, since it was the base for the transfer of the title to the AFP-RSBS.

According to the court, it could not give weight to the testimony of the witness, General Francisco, that he received a million pesos in payment because the deal of sale with the lower amount was duly recognized in the law books and records before the Register of Deeds and the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

There was also no allegation that the first deal of sale was falsified, and that the second deal of sale was falsified, and that the second deal of sale was falsified, and that the second deal of sale was falsified.

The court also said the officials' conviction for the payment of P1.2 billion was justified because the hand-sellers agreed to pay.

It said the hand-sellers did not commit a crime in the falsification of the title to the property, and that the government guaranteed the title to the property was not the selling price.

As for the conviction of the officials for the falsification of the title to the property, the court said the officials did not commit a crime in the falsification of the title to the property.

It also noted that there was a hand-seller who sold the property to the government for the average price of the lot, and not the selling price, and that the government was not the selling price.

Romblon eyes phone firm taxes to raise revenues

By Marlon Ocas

Agencia Informativa

MANILA, Philippines—The Romblon provincial board has passed a resolution that ought to raise telecommunications companies in a bid to raise the province's revenues.

The provincial government, in its Sangguniang Panlalawigan Resolution No. 95-2011-182 dated May 23, asked local Communications Inc., Globe Telecommunications and Line Cellular to submit a copy of their annual gross sales to the local government and demand that the government of local tax applicable under the local Government Code.

The provincial government said as far as a provision in the local Government Code which stated that "The province may impose a tax on business operating a franchise, and a rate not exceeding 5 percent of 1 percent of the annual gross sales."

Board Member Felix Tagas, one of the authors of the resolution, said local franchise taxes have become applicable to the telephone companies in 2008, citing as precedent the Supreme Court ruling that issued the city government of Iloilo when it imposed local taxes on Internet Communication Inc.

Resolution that are not liable to make the phone design (that goes under), that's why we are asking them to give us a copy of the gross sales generated from the province," he said in a phone interview on Monday.

Smart Communications Inc. and Globe Telecommunications have operations in Romblon, while Line Cellular only operates in the towns of San Agustin, Hiligayon and Dagupan.

The provincial government estimated that each of the three firms from 500 million to 1.5 billion annually from their local operations.

"So that would mean around P600,000 annually for the provincial government. It's not that much, but it would greatly help raise our local revenue," said Tagas.

He said taxes which would be an additional source of income since Romblon, a third class province, is highly dependent on its share from the internal revenue allotment.

He said the average annual income of a third class province like Romblon is around P17 million but some even say below that.

China rules out force in sea dispute, rebukes US senator

BEIJING—China on Tuesday ruled out the use of force in the South China Sea after its neighbor expressed concern about its recent assertive moves in the region.

"We will not resort to the use of force or the threat of force," Hong Lei, the foreign affairs spokesman, said. "We will continue to work to solve the problem by peaceful means."

In the next conference, China will reaffirm 21st-century maritime strategy for a tougher 21st-century and appeal for regional cooperation to resolve the South China Sea dispute, Hong Lei said.

Army commentary

Hong said only those countries with territorial claims in the vast Southern Sea waters should be involved in such discussions. Also on Tuesday, China's state military newspaper said Beijing vehemently opposed territorial disputes over the South China Sea after Vietnam asked for international help to defuse tensions over the potentially resource-rich region.

"The visiting to the Liberian ship Daily coincided with exercises conducted by the navy's military along its coast, and it is a normal military activity," said a spokesman.

China and Vietnam have had skirmishes at sea over the last decade over what each country sees as competition for its maritime waters by the other in a search of common ground by key shipping lanes and has led to a hold large deposits of oil and gas.

Such tensions have flared up between China, Vietnam and the Philippines, Malaysia, Brunei and Taiwan, which are also involved in longstanding maritime disputes in the South China Sea, but the present flare of tension has not helped them much.

Unrelated countries

The commentary in the Liberian ship Daily repeated Beijing's warning that China "will not use force" against any country that is not involved in the dispute.

"This dispute must be resolved peacefully through friendly consultation between the two parties involved," the paper said.

"Therefore, China vehemently opposes any country unrelated to the South China Sea issue meddling in the dispute, and it opposes the interventionism of the South China Sea issue," it added.

Former Secretary Clinton and the United States announced last year after the Chinese of maritime claims endorsed in the South China Sea dispute, drawing Washington's support for a unilateral solution.

Beijing insists on handling the dispute over the region as a non-core issue rather than multilaterally, a strategy seen as a line drawn at "stable and peaceful."

The Liberian ship Daily said the United States' policy of forcing up tensions by conducting the exercises in part of the calculation because it is a claim to be won.

"These actions are provocative and exacerbate another well-known fact about the South China Sea problem," the paper said.

Sea of China's history

Call to arms?

Under Vietnam law, any country that intervenes in the South China Sea dispute and is deemed to be a threat to the country's security must be dealt with accordingly.

The Liberian ship Daily said the United States' policy of forcing up tensions by conducting the exercises in part of the calculation because it is a claim to be won.

House backs rules-based approach to West Philippine Sea

By Cynthia D. Salinas

A HOUSE BILL has been introduced in the House of Representatives, endorsing the long-term approach to the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea) following reports of Chinese activities in the area.

House Resolution No. 1461, sponsored by Representative Raula, calls for a rules-based approach to the West Philippine Sea, which includes respect and adherence to international law to preserve peace and stability in the region.

Guides said international law had great equal value to national law, regardless of political, economic or military issues. As such, he said the Philippines should not be seen as a unilateral actor.

"The rule of law is the backbone of peace and stability in the West Philippine Sea," he said. "We should build international systems that have the great confidence in global affairs," he said.

Building not allowed

In the Philippines, as in other countries, peace, good governance, economic growth and social justice are the main goals. The Philippines should not be seen as a unilateral actor.

"Where there are disputes, rules provide an effective way to resolve them and to resolve them," he said.

Guides said the Philippines had faced serious challenges in the West Philippine Sea since the Chinese government's "unilateral" actions in the area.

PAL income expected to recover sharply

Financial turnaround comes despite weak market

By Daniel L. Luman

PHILIPPINE AIRLINES expects to report a profit for its recently ended fiscal year, marking a sharp turnaround for the flag carrier despite being saddled by persistent labor issues.

In an interview, PAL president and chief operating officer Arlene Buncio said he was reporting the airline's income for the "year in positive territory" for its 2010-2011 fiscal year, which ended on March 31, 2011.

"The numbers look good and we are just waiting for the board to approve the figures later this month," he said, declining to provide more details.

According to airline sources, the Luceo financial results will likely report "total comprehensive income" of about $30 million for the period from the $14.3 million loss reported in March 10, 2010.

"We would have losses of $200 million last year but we had a very strong year in the first half of 2011," the source said, noting uncertainty because the numbers have yet to be reviewed by the company's board of directors.

In particular, the official pointed out that the effects of the earthquake and ensuing tsunami on the Japanese market and the spike in fuel prices caused by the unrest in the Middle East and North Africa disrupted PAL's net income toward the end of its fiscal year.

Buncio pointed out that the turnaround in PAL's financial performance came despite an ongoing dispute with its labor unions, which have forced the airline to temporarily suspend its scheduled flight program.

"Given that we could save as much as $10 million annually with our planned restructuring efforts, the company could see a better cash flow if the restructuring could be allowed to implement in real time," he said.

The PAL chief said the airline had record, or higher passenger traffic, total from last December, especially Hong Kong, Singapore, Bangkok and its newly inaugurated line to Cebu.

PAL had also experienced higher passenger traffic between Manila and the cities of Tokyo, Nagoya and Fukuoka, but the carrier fell off sharply in the wake of the twin eruptions that struck Japan in early March.

This on-line source of fuel has increased at the "high 50s," Buncio said.

PAL, now about nine million passengers in fiscal year 2010-2011. This was slightly lower than the 9.2 million passengers it posted in the previous year—a margin he attributed to active measures to shift domestic traffic to Air Asia Philippines subsidiary.

The planned shift in focus resulted in PAL reporting declines in the number of international passengers but a slight decline in domestic traffic.

"We didn't move the line on our Asia subsidiary to PAL, but moved that to Air Asia," said the source (see "Air Philippines," below).

Most passengers, PAL will add less than $100 to its fleet, plus another two Boeing 777s, which it hopes to finally use for its exclusive trans-Pacific service, despite the country's steady for suspended back in Category 3 status by US aviation regulations.

Buncio emphasized the importance of keeping costs 777s into PAL's fleet—and maintaining that cost with long-distance flights—a key factor in improving the airline's efficiency.

In addition, he said PAL must also be allowed to shed unnecessary and out-of-date services from its fleet which can provide the carrier a more efficient, cost-effective and efficient operation.

SMI, LGUs hold consultations on Tampakan

Proponents, LGU execs focus on environmental impact of copper-gold mine project

By Riza T. Ochoaño

ISTAD, CORP. (I-CORP) has started conducting consultations with officials of local government units in South Cotabato, as well as the local bar in the highlights of its draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) for the $1.6-billion Tampakan copper-gold project.

South Cotabato Gov. Arthur Puyat continued in a last-minute bid to stop the project, but he is now focusing on the environmental impact of the project, he said. Puyat said in previous interviews that the long-running Philippine Republic of South Cotabato was asked to study SMI's EIS. The report, however, from the Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) process, is still under review and appeals from various parties to withdraw or modify the project has been filed.

Contributors to the EIS-South Cotabato, including the local bar, is forthcoming, and the EIS process is now under review for submission to the DENR, a 30-day process, said a representative of SMI.

The EIS is a major requirement for the environmental compliance certificate (ECC), which SMI needs to move forward with the Tampakan project.

P-Noy: Increase RE use won't jack up power rates

By Amy B. Roca

Level playing field, transparency, fair pricing ensured

THE ADMINISTRATION has vowed to ensure that a three-fold increase in use of renewable energy resources will not jack up electricity rates unreasonably in the near term, officials say.

In his keynote speech during the launch of the National Renewable Energy Program (NREP) yesterday, President Benigno S. Aquino III said the government, by way of policies and guidelines, would "ensure a level playing field, transparency, and fair electricity pricing."

According to his speech, the current administration will vigorously support initiatives for the development of the local energy sector in the context of the broader priorities of the government. Among these initiatives were the launch of the NREP which will serve as a roadmap, outlining national RE targets and establish a framework for sharing and pursuing policies.

He also said the government would keep a "watchful eye" in ensuring that the implementation of the green energy roadmap would be advantageous to all stakeholders, particularly power consumers.

The launch of the NREP according to Energy Secretary Jose Jose B. Alonzo, also, created a solution in Philippine renewable energy development "for our launching and put a program, but a plan to ramp up efforts around the full development and use of the country's renewable energy resources."

renewable energy resources."

Under the NREP the Philippines will target to increase RE-based power capacity by as much as 35,000 megawatts by 2035 to over 20,000 MW in installed capacity, according to his speech yesterday.

This target will allow the country to have a power mix, in which RE power will account for more than 50 percent of total capacity, according to Alonzo.

The goal will not only the RE use be achieved, the energy chief said, given that the country has abundant renewable energy sources, with coal use continues rising from 200,000

MW to as high as 270,000 MW in projected capacity. These power use included hydro, geothermal, solar, biogas, ocean and wind.

"We have not increased subsidies in power of our NREP and in our intent to reach our target, we hope to deliver these subsidies around building better mechanisms to see that it fully develop the country's available resources," Alonzo explained.

"NREP is a plan and like all plans, it is not cast in stone. It must be constantly reviewed and updated to be able to adjust to new technologies, changes. As a living document, the NREP will be regularly reviewed and updated, guided by our primary goal of providing clean and affordable energy, even as it fulfills government of Philippines," he added.

Alonzo also noted that the Philippine government would serve as a "watch dog" on renewable energy so it has helped in implementing the mechanisms that should have put in place after the law was signed in 2008.

PH on track to limiting budget gap to 3.1% of GDP

By Renee M. Domingo

MANILA (AP) — The Philippines' fiscal sustainability is "no longer" worried as government spending is now under control and the budget deficit is on a downward, according to the International Monetary Fund's latest assessment (AP). The fund's prediction is for the year, according to the International Monetary Fund's latest assessment, budget deficit for the government to achieve its target of reducing the budget deficit to 3.1 percent of gross domestic product this year from 3.3 percent previously. This means budget overruns by P214.4 billion this year, down from P314.4 billion in 2010.

The country is among governments around the world struggling to contain increasing budget deficits, the agency administration has kept its pledge to maintain the fiscal rules, but rejected in response to the global financial crisis," the IMF said.

"While there are no major structural changes in the current budget, the government expects to build on its efforts to improve administration and

Investor interest in PECR 4 remains high

By Amy R. Roco

15 blocks offered well within PH territory

THE PHILIPPINE government's verbal and written offers to the Chinese investor interest in the upcoming Philippine Energy Contracting Round (PECR 4), which is highly prospective of oil and gas blocks will be offered for exploration and development.

In the aftermath of the launching of the National Renewable Energy Program (NREP) by Energy Secretary Juan M. Ling, it showed that there is high interest in the Philippines' oil and gas blocks and that there is no doubt about that.

"We're not selling any block in the head block," he further noted.

Ling pointed out that some of the 150 prospective blocks that had expressed interest in investing in the country's up-stream oil and gas sector were brought up by the highly active investors. They know all the more or are offering no least with the Philippine leader.

But nobody is questioning the fact, the question is at what time can you offer more particularly in the head block? The head block is within the country's 200-mile oil and gas exclusive economic zone, he added.

In fact, Ling noted, there were a couple of state-owned Chinese firms that participated in the PECR 4 to be held for sometime later.

The DOE is offering 15 contracts for the exploration, development and production of petroleum and gas, to be awarded within 150 million hectares in various and various regions, Central Luzon, Northwest Mindanao, Mindanao, Cebu, Iloilo, Zamboanga and Cagayan.

Among the state-owned firms, he said, are state-owned firms in the Northwest Mindanao area, known to the Philippines deep water gas-to-power project, the largest industrial sector in the Philippines.

They mention very also firms in the blocks within the Iloilo Sea where petroleum exploration and development, and production, and production, and production.

EV has already drilled four wells. Three out of them have yielded indicated presence of gas, a report that has further encouraged investors to look further at the Philippines for other potential petroleum sites.

This is the last time to conduct the PECR 4 is expected to be held in the Philippines. It is highly prospective of oil and gas blocks in the Philippines' exclusive zone.

The PECR 4 is a key part of President Aquino's long-term plan to address the Philippines' need for oil and gas to ensure the country's dependence on imported.

NGCP pushing through with Leyte-Mindanao interconnection

NATIONAL GRID Corp. of the Philippines intends to push through with the 1,100-km Leyte-Mindanao interconnection Project (LIMP), a three-decade old government project aimed to greatly boost power supply in Mindanao, for as long as government regulations would allow it.

NGCP president Oscar A. Alvarez said the company's intention to move the project forward is to ensure that the country's power supply is secure and stable.

"The LIMP is still under study but we're pushing it," he said.

He said NGCP is one of the country's main power agencies, who are willing to submit the funds needed to implement the project.

He said that the decision as to whether or not the project will be pursued will largely depend on the government's decision. NGCP has already submitted a proposal to the DOE, as required by the first phase of the LIMP project but the government has yet to decide on it.

The first phase will involve the construction of a 1,100-km transmission line and related study to explore the best interconnection route in the Agusan del Norte-Corona area.

The second phase of the LIMP will involve the construction of 20 substations to enhance the ability to connect the Leyte and Mindanao grids, covered the actual implementation of the project.

AgriLink '11 highlights farm integration

INTEGRATION is a topic in agriculture that continues to gain importance due to its potential to improve farm productivity as well as enhance productivity, productivity, and global competitiveness. When farming systems today focus on large-scale, industrial production systems which can work well in growing volume on a short-term basis, but there is a growing need for making them more eco-friendly and sustainable. There are also added reasons for the need, economic and structural developments in agricultural systems that would be more viable in the long run.

According to Association for Sustainable Agriculture and Development (ASAD) president Antonio V. Roco, "One way of improving the current agricultural approach is to promote and incentivize to work together an enhanced, integrated production system which integrates and utilizes resources, reduction of environmental and ecological damage, farming communities with better revenues. The challenge for the government, the private sector and our farmers is to coordinate and complement with each other to adopt proven technologies and management systems in the development of these integrated farming systems."

From Dec. 6 to 8, 2011, FIELL, on the 10th year, will be organizing the country's largest and most influential trade fair on agriculture, aquaculture and food/agriculture, Aquaculture and Food/AgriLink. To be held at the World Trade Center, the event's theme, "Integration: Key to Sustainable Agriculture," seeks to promote and incentivize integration concepts and approaches toward a more productive, efficient and self-sustaining Philippine agriculture.

Roco stated, "This year's AgriLink seeks to help in the process of effectively linking our farmers to the market and maximize their benefits from the value chain."

After 23 months of decline, NCR factory gate prices finally up

By Natalia W. Dominguez

FACTORY SALES prices finally showed growth in April as 1.6 percent year-on-year following 23 straight months of decline, according to the National Association of Manufacturers.

This constraint was attributed mainly to the continuing double-digit hike in prices of petroleum products, beginning at 25.6

Results from the NBS's latest monthly survey of January gate prices—which covered 20 selected groups of manufactured goods included in the producer price index (PPI)—showed that prices in 12 other groups rose while six others gained, while one declined no matter how you slice it.

Pricing single-digit drops were the prices of food manufacturing, non-electrical machinery, tobacco products, fabricated metal products, textiles, rubber and plastic products, transport equipment, nonferrous mineral products, leather products, footwear and sewing apparel, wood and wood products, and basic metals.

On the other hand, prices of bananas and oranges continued to contract, settling at 23.1 cent each.

Other prices down in April were electrical machinery, paper and paper products, live crabs, miscellaneous manufactured items,

Latest data on manufacturing output show that the growth in the value and volume of manufacturing output continued to show gains in March at 9.7 percent and 11.1 percent year-on-year, respectively, compared to February levels.

Apert from painting materials and related compounds, prices of other materials showed losses.

According to the NRC, the month-on-month growth rate of the retail price index of select construction materials in the NCR stood at 0.2 percent in May 2011 from 0.3 percent in April 2011.

A decline was present in the index of non-energy materials at -0.7 percent in May from 0.2 percent in April; plumbing materials, -0.3 percent from 1.8 percent; and the military materials, 0.8 percent from zero.

Also, the monthly rate of increase in electrical materials index decreased to 0.1 percent from 0.3 percent and monthly non-construction materials, 0.2 percent

A higher monthly bill was exacted in country materials index at 0.8 percent from 4.5 percent while the same April rate of 4.8 percent was observed in pricing materials and related construction labor.

Downward price adjustments were not all in cement, gravel, sand, and selected fine masonry materials.

The annual growth rate of the retail price index of selected construction materials to the NCB was slower at 6.5 percent in May from 4.7 percent in April.

No stopping Audi at Le Mans

LE MANS, France—Audi overcame two crashes to hold off pressure from chasing Peugeot and won the 24 hours of Le Mans on Sunday.

Under Lucas di Grassi, Marcel Fässler and Benoît Tréluyer, the Audi No. 2 won, giving the German manufacturer a 10th win at Le Mans.

They opened into pole position of second place for third victory at the world's most famous endurance race. Peugeot holds the record with 18 wins. Ferrari dropped to fourth with one.

Audi No. 2 completed 358 laps in 24 hours, leading the Peugeot No. 8 drive by Simon Pagenaud, Pedro Lamy and Sébastien Bourdais by 15:56.4 seconds.

"It's absolutely fantastic to win this race," said Tréluyer, who started the race on pole. "This great grand victory seems to have a great history. With four, we had French who were really strong."

Stephane Sarrazin, Franck Moulay and Nicolas Hansmann finished third in their Peugeot No. 8, two laps back.

Peugeot No. 7 driver by Marc Gené, Anthony Davidson and Alexander Wurz came in fourth, four laps behind the pace.

Audi took the top three spots last year with its R15 model, while the Peugeot was able to finish the race. The German manufacturer has enjoyed a successful tradition at Le Mans since its first win in 1970.

The dominating No. 20 victory in 23 years Audi has added another impressive chapter in its success story at the 11.3-mile 24-hour race. After the first six laps of a 24-hour race in 2008, the first triumph of a diesel-powered car in 2008 and the first engine with variable valve timing, VTEC, but just multi-lap engine with variable timing.

"Audi also technology has passed as victims and not the victims," said head of Peugeot's 24-hour racing. "The Peugeot 908 after the car had crossed the finish line, it was a risk. But the car has already paid off. The Peugeot 908 was a risk of its own at Le Mans 2011. Particularly due to the race scenario and not, even this has been the most difficult in the history of Le Mans for us in an emotional sense so far. But our team managed to keep the strong competition at bay for 24 hours with just one car, a silver, silver, silver. One year at Le Mans on the ground of this triumph. However, the race that this (McNish) and Mike Rockenfeller were out of this extremely heavy workload we will at least in reputation as that of the world's best victory."

The Peugeot No. 7 and No. 9 had withdrawn the Audi No. 2, overnight the number of the Le Mans Toyota No. 11 and Peugeot No. 50. Peugeot lost the victory in the 11th and 14th hours and helped the Audi-making ground.

In the 17th hour, Peugeot closed the fastest lap in 5 minutes, 35.200 seconds on the 13.6-kilometer circuit.

Peugeot No. 9 was slower than Audi No. 2, but the French manufacturer had a stronger lead, around the lower last race, around 10:00.

Although Peugeot No. 9 made only 20 pit stops compared to 31 for the Audi No. 2, the speed differential was significant enough to give victory to the German-made car.

Lamy and Sarrazin made their last pit stop in the same time, but Audi No. 2 came out of the pit ahead of Peugeot No. 9 to keep the lead.

"We were lucky by a 100,000th of a second," said Sarrazin. "We had developed a highly reliable and fast car. We were so sure of reliability. The objective is to win, but we missed by 15 seconds at the finish."

Audi No. 2 was under heavy pressure from three Peugeot 908s. Sébastien Bourdais had chances of defeating the 908s in the last 100 miles, but he crashed on the lap.

THE TOYOTA Alphard is an ideal choice for its broad and varied uses.

MOTORING

Back to School Ad-VAN-tage

THE TOYOTA Vios is an excellent example of a smartly designed, value-for-money vehicle.

By Mike Uy

SUMMER'S GONE and it's back-to-school season again and with a number of long holiday (or at least weekends in distant summer), Japanese Motorcars takes a look at several passenger vans and minivans from the premium segment to the entry-level commuter shoddy for those who either have growing families or even growing enterprises that are in the market for a passenger van.

Three from Toyota

Alphard, Premio and Vios

With a pricing just a few thousand pesos below the 3 million price mark, Toyota offers the only Japanese make van in the premium segment aside from its Perana model. Popular in other Asian markets, it comes with a 2.5-liter and 3.4-liter gas engine variants with an added premium on the post-2010 sales (like its pickup trucks) and optional safety. It is an wonder this minivan took the 2013 J.D.I. Car of the Year award (COTY) as the best premium van and MPV of the year.

Introduced in the last model last

August, the most powerful variant is equipped with a 3.5-liter 24-valve DOHC Dual VVT-i engine and standard with a 6-speed automatic transmission that gives out a maximum output of 270hp at 6,200 rpm and 340 km/h of range at 4,700 rpm. The 7-seater has an electric sunroof for its front and second row seats. Extra goodies like a 10-speaker audio system comes as a 200 calling features Bluetooth system, power windows, automatic air vents, dual air conditioning and touch-down to unlock power windows in the back as class. Check behind its 18-inch alloy rims, with stylish body and standard comfortable seats and leather interior, makes this slightly smaller 7-seater a better value proposition than the Alphard.

If the Alphard is the Alpha male among premium vans, Premio is content as a commuter van. Toyota's (RA) is probably the largest category studied in this country. Traditionally, nothing much has changed over the years. However, its over-reliable 1.5-liter four-cylinder engine can propel the steady 11-seater van in and out of stops and as well as offer a decent cruising speed for a quick and easy family getting. With a nice dual air conditioning system and custom woodgrain trim, it is considered an overall good performer for a large family commuter or a business shuttle van.

Hyundai Grand Starex

As grand as they can come

When we think about Hyundai's Starex, we usually think about the regular Grand Starex variant. The Hyundai Starex van came into the local automotive scene in the late 1990s when the first generation Starex vans were being brought into the market. By 2011, with the official launch of Hyundai Motor America, Inc. (HMA), the company's dedication for Hyundai vehicles, was the van quickly became the flagship model. After three years, the latest GRQ model came with a new engine, going to third generation (GRQ) (owners had better recognize third engine in 2008. After another three years, that resulted in third generation model called Grand Starex equipped with a more advanced CRDi engine and 7th Generation Hyundai's (2012).

The "Starex" variant came out of course. When we say "Starex," it usually means the vehicle is a special model long-reliable van. Hyundai chose the same word. Hyundai's intention to supply its engine van model is a known fact with a high rolling body and a luxurious as well as spacious interior. More than just a full-sized van, the Grand Starex Line is fitted with 17-inch chrome wheels and the well-known Hyundai badge on the side of its passengers with an air conditioning system. Its second Hyundai premium featured metal seats and its most highlight is its 27" Enticeva LCD TV showing a DVD. Inlay Digital, L.I. no. Entertainment system with a 5.5" LCD touch-screen monitor on the dashboard and complete with a navigation system and USB and memory card slot. Complementing the video system is a six-speaker system going down the side and a surround sound effect of two complete subwoofer LED light.

The predecessor of the Grand Starex Line is a 2.5L CRDi M2T engine type, with a maximum output of 170hp at 4,000 rpm while giving a peak torque of 40kg at 2,000-2,500 rpm range. Its engine is an H-Matic 5-speed automatic. For better stopping power, front and rear disc brakes are used. Despite that the special model gives the owner a kind of celebrity that with its luxury finish and on-board entertainment package, it is actually a good van for the family as well. Its entry feature and large interior makes them the kids to one per in their own with enough elbow room to be a little lounge around while mom can pick up her favorite book with a personal light on, even with the shades up. For more purpose however, the standard Grand Starex model is better recommended, since the latter's innovative front offers an always-on-going handover for low-costing multi-parking buildings and

Force View Van and MPX Van Value for money vans

With over a dozen branches nationwide, Isuzu is the fastest growing Chinese-made vehicle brand in the country today. Its Force Blended path, up to 2013, is the first Isuzu van in the 2013-2014 Car of the Year Awards held at the PTC last April. More than just a brand, the View Van and MPX models have already been awarded in the automotive market. It recently also launched a highly customized View Van model offering luxurious amenities in its interior such as the head-resting reclining and VIPs who require a customized seating with one-touch control to multifunction like a monitor and audio video entertainment system.

In fact, the MPX is a classic example of a strategically designed, value-for-money vehicle catering to a wide range of applications from personal transport to commercial and business use. In the 2011 Chinese technology and design award was awarded by Lotus, makers of the famous line of British sports cars. Its active features include ABS and ESP brake systems from Bosch as well as active safety features like air bags, door sill sensors and a high-contrast body with a computer-aided collision design.

WHEN A BOOK sets its sights on the prize, just cast your mind on the overly bookish documentation on the same issue.

And what sort of prize would be worth the effort for the sake of the house? Here's a hint: something with wheels and no engine. For some choice, a complete set that can take him and his family from this to that is enough of a reward for all the bustles and to-do.

But we're not talking about a simple cut here, and we're not talking about a simple deal, either. We're talking of brothers who have a life outside of work, say a farm or an outdoor hobby that he and his second "couple" are sharing the weekends and holidays. So, is it an HRV for the 21st? Well, an HRV here really is a term "misused," so to speak. It can't take a 30-hour fall away anyone on its back. And when

For the dad who wants to go places and bring along his family (and even the family dog), the double-end park-up is it. The market isn't as short supply as them. There's the Kansas State Fairgrounds, Kansas (8770), Ford Ranger, Denver W-Lite, the House of Man and the Milwaukee locals.

It wasn't just the looks that have won a family-run firm an ally with the state.

It's fuel, too. The office of the Florida Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Council has the 2011 Honda 600 GCMC and TRD in frequent Motoring magazine coverage. Powered by the new 2.3-liter 4-cylinder DOHC, 16-valve multi-link and computerized VTEC and D-16 engine mated to a 5-speed automatic transmission, the Honda immediately resembled an urban bike as this pick-up could indeed prove to be a two-in-one rig for the state.

Manitex's engineers explained that power output is increased and maintained, due to the amount of supercharging contributed by the variable geometry turbochargers (VGTs). In essence, with the same amount of fuel injected in a VGT and a fixed-VT engine, VGT engines maintain rich fuel conditions even after the fuel conditions and optimal lubrication supplied by the turbochargers by cooling the intake air. Our perfect summer family vacation

A YEAR AGO, I was blessed with enough leisure time to sit down with my computer and cut through the thousands of digital photographs stored in my hard drive.

Every once in a while, I go through the photos of the year and develop the most memorable ones. As I went through them, I saw some of our most recent vacation photos, and couldn't help but compare our current travels to our last. When I was just one and my husband, John, back then, we used to choose destinations in a more and less organized way—just pick a place and go. But as the years went by, we started to take our vacation trips more seriously. We started to plan them. And now, we're taking them more seriously.

Nowadays, our vacations are almost always a different kind of vacation. Traveling without children is always a trip to us, so we're always looking for ways to make it work. As a result of that, the photos we have taken are of us, not of the kids. We're always looking for ways to make it work.

Recently, we decided to visit, here in the heart of the island, we wanted to visit. We wanted a vacation that would allow the kids to enjoy and for us to enjoy without having to worry about them. But at the same time, we wanted a little bit of excitement for ourselves.

Midlife Bay

Midlife Bay is a beautiful beach area located on the north end of the island. It's a beautiful beach area with a lot of amenities. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit.

Andrew and John's family

While you sleep, let your computer do the work for you.

My vacation, it was a beautiful one. I was able to enjoy the beach and the sun, and I was able to enjoy the company of my family. It was a great vacation, and I was able to enjoy it all.

The next great discovery of the weekend was the Midlife Bay. It was a beautiful beach area with a lot of amenities. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit.

Kid-friendly activities and excitement for the adults, including 'bundling' adventures and ATV rides—we had the best of both worlds.

Midlife Bay, Midlife Bay, and I would challenge each other to make the most of our vacation. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit.

We spent and filled up the vacation time, and we had a great time. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit.

It wasn't long before my vacation was over, and I was back home. I was able to enjoy the beach and the sun, and I was able to enjoy the company of my family. It was a great vacation, and I was able to enjoy it all.

I returned from my vacation, and I was able to enjoy the beach and the sun, and I was able to enjoy the company of my family. It was a great vacation, and I was able to enjoy it all.

Our kids had made some friends with some of the other kids, and they were having a great time. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit.

The next day, we were off to the beach. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit.

That afternoon, just before we were about to go to bed, we were looking at the photos from our vacation. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit.

I couldn't believe how quickly our vacation had gone by. Looking at the photos now, I was reminded of how much I was looking forward to the vacation. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit. We had heard so much about it, and we were excited to visit.

Discovering Antipolo's greener side

Rizal's rustic capital, with its proximity to Manila, offers some lovely garden getaways

PEOPLE OFTEN forget that Antipolo is part of a province, what with its close proximity to Eusebio Maria Manila, residential villages and malls (there's 5th Drive) and the post (AM Manana).

The final capital is an ideal day-trip destination for both gardens, interesting architecture, art galleries. It is also a lovely venue for readings, parties, picnics and family outings.

The city has a continuing suburban vibe. The weather is lovely and the people friendly, and it has a working feel that makes it a great place to spend two hours or so and then head back to Manila.

There's a right way to light up your home

INDIC Table lamp has a mélange of key elements—metal mesh and glass for the base and fabric for shade.

OUR HOME, the lifestyle store where you can get great designs at great prices, lights up your home in style with a freshly designed lineup from Living Direct. These lamps complement today's modern minimalist interiors with bases made from carved wood, silver chrome, metal mesh, hand-blown glass, and crystals. In true contemporary fashion, these are also environmentally friendly, each constructed to accommodate energy-saving bulbs.

When choosing a table lamp, think about the light output in terms of lamp size, bulb type and shade type, and choose the table lamp that matches your decor. Lamps that use 150W incandescent bulbs will provide more light and hold a large decorative statement in a room. Lamps that use low-voltage bulbs, like 60 and 40W bulbs, will provide lovely ambient light elsewhere. Table lamps designed combined with other types of ground lights in a large room to create a balanced effect.

The Living Direct lamp collection is available at larger City Center stores nationwide.

Midrise leisure homes rise in Bora

SINCE 2002 the position of the world-to-be, among a leisure home is no longer an exception. Developers such as ALTA Vista de Bora are making this opportunity possible for many people. It has brought to the people in search of development to the leisure market with each project in ALTA Vista de Bora, a midrise residential project, in the heart of the leisure tourist destination in Bora.

ALTA Vista de Bora (ALTA Vista de Bora) is a leisure development located in the northern part of Bora (Boracay) Island, Bora.

ALTA Vista de Bora has become a landmark with its distinctive, colorful, open, entertainment area, pool, recreation and recreational facilities.

Vista de Bora with convenient access to the shoreline of three popular Bora beaches: White Beach, Pink Beach and Puka Beach beach. A beach-side venue just has become a very viable alternative in having a base for mid-rise developments and services in Bora. The core of mid-rise developments along Bora's shores is more profitable compared to owning a unit at a residential development such as the Vista de Bora. Core residents who enjoy property management services, more poised to bring convenience and security.

ALTA Vista de Bora's master planning is similar to ALTA Vista's other residential developments in the city. It has its own clubhouse with lounge, open entertainment area, pool, tennis, and recreational facilities and activities for the enjoyment of guests of various ages. Other units include pool and Jacuzzi, landscaped surroundings, no building problem.

condemned various light sources and to add more depth to a few spaces. Since Aduela and Ortiz love to entertain, one climactic lesson change was to open up the kitchen and make it part of the living and dining areas. The designer said that installing a custom mirror in the living room not only opened the space, but also defines the intended setting.

Scale down: Aduela had the furniture custom-built and scaled down for a condo. Aduela said the most common mistake for first-time condo dwellers is to buy furniture that ends up being too bulky for the space. Instead of a cordoned sofa in the living room, he chose a four-seater white sofa and limited the choices of furniture to increase and so attract coffee table.

Daily with color and textures. It can come inside among inhabitants is having too much variety in the color scheme, thereby overpowering the place. But this condo, a coordinating pattern of neutral-colored walls and ceiling with brown accent walls just enough from room to room, thereby creating a unified look.

"There is a way. When I get home from work, I want to relax in a warm atmosphere," says Aduela.

Light: Aduela is not afraid of color, which is used to surprise elements. He chose black for the hallways and blue floor in the guest room, his subconscious the importance of keeping a balance of complementary colors and hints for the purpose of color and in accessories and self-identifying. Color is an expensive way to add more dimension to the room, he says.

In the living room, the monochromatic color scheme of neutral and brown is enhanced by the pop of color from Aduela's paintings, graphic prints in the three pillars and textures from the porch-side patterns in the leather ottoman, the drapery capes and leather ottoman shade.

The star guest room, furnished with a sofa bed, is made interesting by the complementary colors based in the color elements—white walls, Morgan shades, brown throw pillows and the yellow abstraction on the wall.

Black is a daring choice for a bathroom. It is enhanced by the silver leaf accent mirror top.

Decorative with dark finishes. To lead down, the flooring is made of custom black vinyl tiles with dark borders. The high chair also adds to the feeling of space. The vintage mirror and contemporary furniture in the living room, the cabinet overhead in a white finish, and black granite countertops in the kitchen add depth to the overall relaxed style and setting.

Hide the clutter: Since clutter is the biggest concern of most condo dwellers, Aduela maximizes the space with lots of hidden storage. Suspense seats around a clear glass table top visually expands the dining room. The seats also lift up to provide storage. A table for the television and electronics also becomes a hidden pantry for the kitchen.

The shelf not only serves as display objects, but also becomes a decorative element with landscape design. Mirrors can hide away clutter. A long mirror has a built-in bed that can be pulled out when there's a guest.

As a final touch, Aduela doesn't stop at the windows with drapes, swings, and shutters for added glamour and contrast. He adds that a long that mirror hangs had silver at key.

DESIGN update windows for same glass pane if it's a small space, says Aduela. A restoration of the door additional color to the dark colors.

JCS Aduela takes care of the creative side while partner Oliver Ortiz handles the business.

BLACK is a daring color for the bathroom, with Spanish tiles contrasted by a silver leaf mirror that enlarges the space.

the language of indie film-making." Guillen had taken notice of the workshop, too. As an adult mother and daughter were making eye contact together, which eventually became "Mistaken," she is writing in the movie as well, and it's the first time that Guillen is directing.

The filmmaker said they enjoyed the whole process, from the workshop to the shoot. "We have our crew," Guillen said, "but after expressing our stage, we and I want our audience."

Her eldest daughter, now 16, is also in the movie, as well as her sister, now 14. "We are all involved, now it's produced by my company (The) Green," said Guillen, who recently wrapped up principal photography. "Mistaken" is currently in postproduction.

The last shooting day to reflect X-Men members, mainly friends and family.

Guillen said she managed her actors—Ricky Dumas, Lisa Larkin, Mark Eil, Angelica Nargenton, 40-Soto, hotel Bros, Pami Hernandez, Martina Gubert, Ben Gerny, Shy and Ben Hernandez, Madeline "Maddie," Lily and Arnel de la Cruz, among others—in "Mistaken" on their first day of shooting. She explained, "they had a last-minute, but the scene wasn't scripted because I wanted it to come out real. I was inspired by some of the reactions they came up with." With this, her first indie, Guillen now knows what Hollywood filmmakers go through. "It's like going the wrong way," she said. "Mistaken" is the opening film in this year's Cinecittà.
